REPLACE VETERANS SERVING IN FRANCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—With baseball packed away in the morthballs for the duration of the war and the stars of the game who are in the service migrating to France with their various units, the prediction that many of them will be missing when the game comes back grows stronger day by day.

comes back grows stronger day by day.

The close of the 1918 senson brought forth announcements of final retirement from a number of players, among them Harry Hooper, Hill Rariden, Ty Cobb and others. Many more decisions of this kind may be expected.

The latest player to announce his definite retirement is Dr. John Lavan. Washington shoctatop, now known as junior Licuit. Lavan, U. S. N.

Lavan and recently that he is through for all time. He is in the hary and he likes it. He is going to attend to it.

"Ill soon be going across," remarked Johnny to a friend in Chicago, "and as I like the navy, I think I will attend to it. At any rute, I have played my last game of professional baseball, That final."

Welcome the Change.

Many more players now in the various branches of the service will do as Lavan Intends to do. Getting away from baseball will seem good to dozens of them, for getting into something else with a chance to making arrangements to cover the source of enjoyment.
